No Mo Hosts to Statewide Student Government Meet

Representatives from four of the state colleges met on the NWMSC campus Apr. 20 to discuss and exchange ideas about student government at the annual Missouri State College Student Government Association Conference.

President J. W. Jones welcomed the delegates from the Missouri School of Mines and Metallurgy at Rolla, Southeast Missouri State at Cape Girardeau, Central Missouri State at Warrensburg, and the host Senators from NWMSC, to begin the day of business meetings and discussion groups. Northeast Missouri State at Kirksville and Southwest Missouri State at Springfield were unable to attend the convention.

Topics for the afternoon discussion were: "To what extent is the student government responsible in raising enthusiasm and pride in our colleges?" led by Senator Judy Hullman, "Is it necessary to have student governments?" led by Senator Dale Sporleder, and "What is the role of your student government?" led by Bob Cotter.

Two proposals were made at the business meeting following the afternoon discussion groups: (1.) To allow activity cards from any MIAA school to be good at any MIAA conference activity and (2.) To establish a bimonthly newsletter published by the secretary-treasurer from information furnished by all member schools. Officers elected for next year were from Rolla except for the vice-president who was from Warrensburg, the host school for next year's convention.

Bob Cobb, retiring Student Body President, served as presiding officer at the business meetings and at the banquet which concluded the conference

Saturday night. The other association officers were Rex Pettegrew, vice-president; Mary Grantham, secretary-treasurer; Dale Sporleder, executive committeeman; and Mr. Peter Jackson and Mr. Kenneth Thompson, advisors.

President Cobb said of the Convention, "This meeting has given our Senate a good look at the student governments of the conference schools and has shown us areas in which we can make improvements. But most important was the way in which it got our Senate working together as a cohesive unit." Cobb also praised the NWMSC Senators for their leadership of the discussion groups.

Fourth Estate To Join Spring Retreat Exodus

What's the state of the press in the nation?

For most of the year the staff of the Missourian is too busy putting a paper out to worry, but this Friday it'll be different.

Staffs of 18 Missouri colleges will gather at the School of Journalism, M.U., to take part in that institution's Journalism Week, to eat a luncheon together, and to attend a banquet with the working press that night.

Larry Schulenberg, editor; D. F. Peel, advisor; and others of the staff will attend.

Northwest Missourian

The Editor's Desk

Only a few weeks until the parking lots will be vacant and the dorms emptied. Northwest Missouri State will have the appearance of a ghost town rather than a college.

Many things have happened this year; things which will be memories for many years to come. Homecoming will stand out as one of the major activities of the school year, with the late hours working on the floats and house decorations. And then the skits. The election campaigns had many Bearcats working hard and long; but rewarded at the end. The school dances were many grins.

Friendship were made and in some cases they've turned out to be more than merely friendships when considering the lavaliers, pinnings and engagements of the year. In fact, many students are not exactly looking to the summer vacation with anticipation; rather with dread in a way.

Many students have the time, the need or the want to join one of the numerous organizations on campus, and through these have really enjoyed themselves and are assured of more fun for next year.

But let's not forget the real reason for being here; the reason for the existence of NWMSC — grades. In some cases this isn't a very pleasant word. Usually you get out of a course what you deserve. And if you don't deserve very much you've nevertheless received something of value here at college.

Tally For 1963 Lists 264 Grads

The countdown has begun, with the issuing of the Finals Schedule, for another senior class: 264 bachelors and one master in 1963.

Broken down (and the inside word is that many of them feel that way) there are 14 taking A.B.'s.; 32 B.S. degrees. But 163 with the B.S. in Secondary Ed. with 51 in Elementary Ed. and four with the el/sec. B.S. in music.

Neal N. Brown, Corning, Ia., is scheduled for the M.S. in Education.

In a strictly unofficial count (in which we ignored double majors) we found 39 Business majors while PE and Home Ec. had 21 each. English followed with 20 headed for theme grading.

Social Science, Math and IA have 17 each with 14 taking Accounting majors (we hoped to work in that joke about no accounting for women but number 14, Judith A. Andes...)

Biology, 12 majors; Fine Arts, eight, and History seven. Three each in Chemistry, Marketing and Ag; two Econ. and one each for Spanish, French and Speech.

Good luck, grads. And we hope you escape finals.

The Stroller

Missouri's two top baseball teams were both clinging to the summit of their major league cornpiles. This just goes to show that all kinds of queer things happen on Thursday. Your Old Stroller is willing to bet his sneakers that at least one of them will see the sunlight for longer than one day before August, when the A's start their annual pennant push.

And speaking of the sun, the Stroller would like to make those rumors official. You know, the ones about the movement with the slogan—"Help Make THE ROOF Co-educational!" Of course this only means that the rumors are now officially rumors—in unofficial circles. (Official circles are bent-up squares, so things usually don't circulate too well there.) Confused?

Some fanatic has organized a committee for the Study of Bastille Storming. But the International Union of Ladies Garment Workers is infiltrating the dorms with organizers. "Unions are always lousing things up," as Uncle Arbuckle would say. That's enough on that—rumors are always only popular fancy or serious jokes anyhow.

Popular fancy is often very interesting in itself. Here are a few question which seemed worthy of their asking by Your Old Stroller.

"Why can't someone remember to turn off the light at the back door of Colden Hall when he leaves?"

"Wouldn't Lamkin Lake (alias the College Canoe-Crafts Classroom) be much more attractive surrounded almost by growing trees and with a little island in just about the middle?"

"Has the City of Maryville really had to sabotage its main thoroughfare to keep people from leaving as fast as they can?"
